

Amphibians

The Leopard frog is common to our area, but we also have bullfrogs and spring peepers.

Frogs are amphibians. They hatch in the water with gills and then transform into an adult with air-breathing lungs.

Look under some logs and you may be lucky enough to see a spotted salamander with yellow or orange spots.

You may also see the blue spotted salamander.

How Frogs and Salamanders grow

